The challenges of tutor training for high school learners

Friday, 12 July 2013 09:20 (20 minutes)

Abstract content
 (Max 300 words)

With an increased emphasis on high school education, the design of an effective tutor training, for high school tutoring, must consider the interaction of many dimensions that affect tutors' performance. Issues to be considered include who should provide training, program requirements and curricula, length of the program, follow-up activities, preparation for international tutors, greater learner diversity, etc.
