The idea in “digital holography” is to digitally create the desired hologram

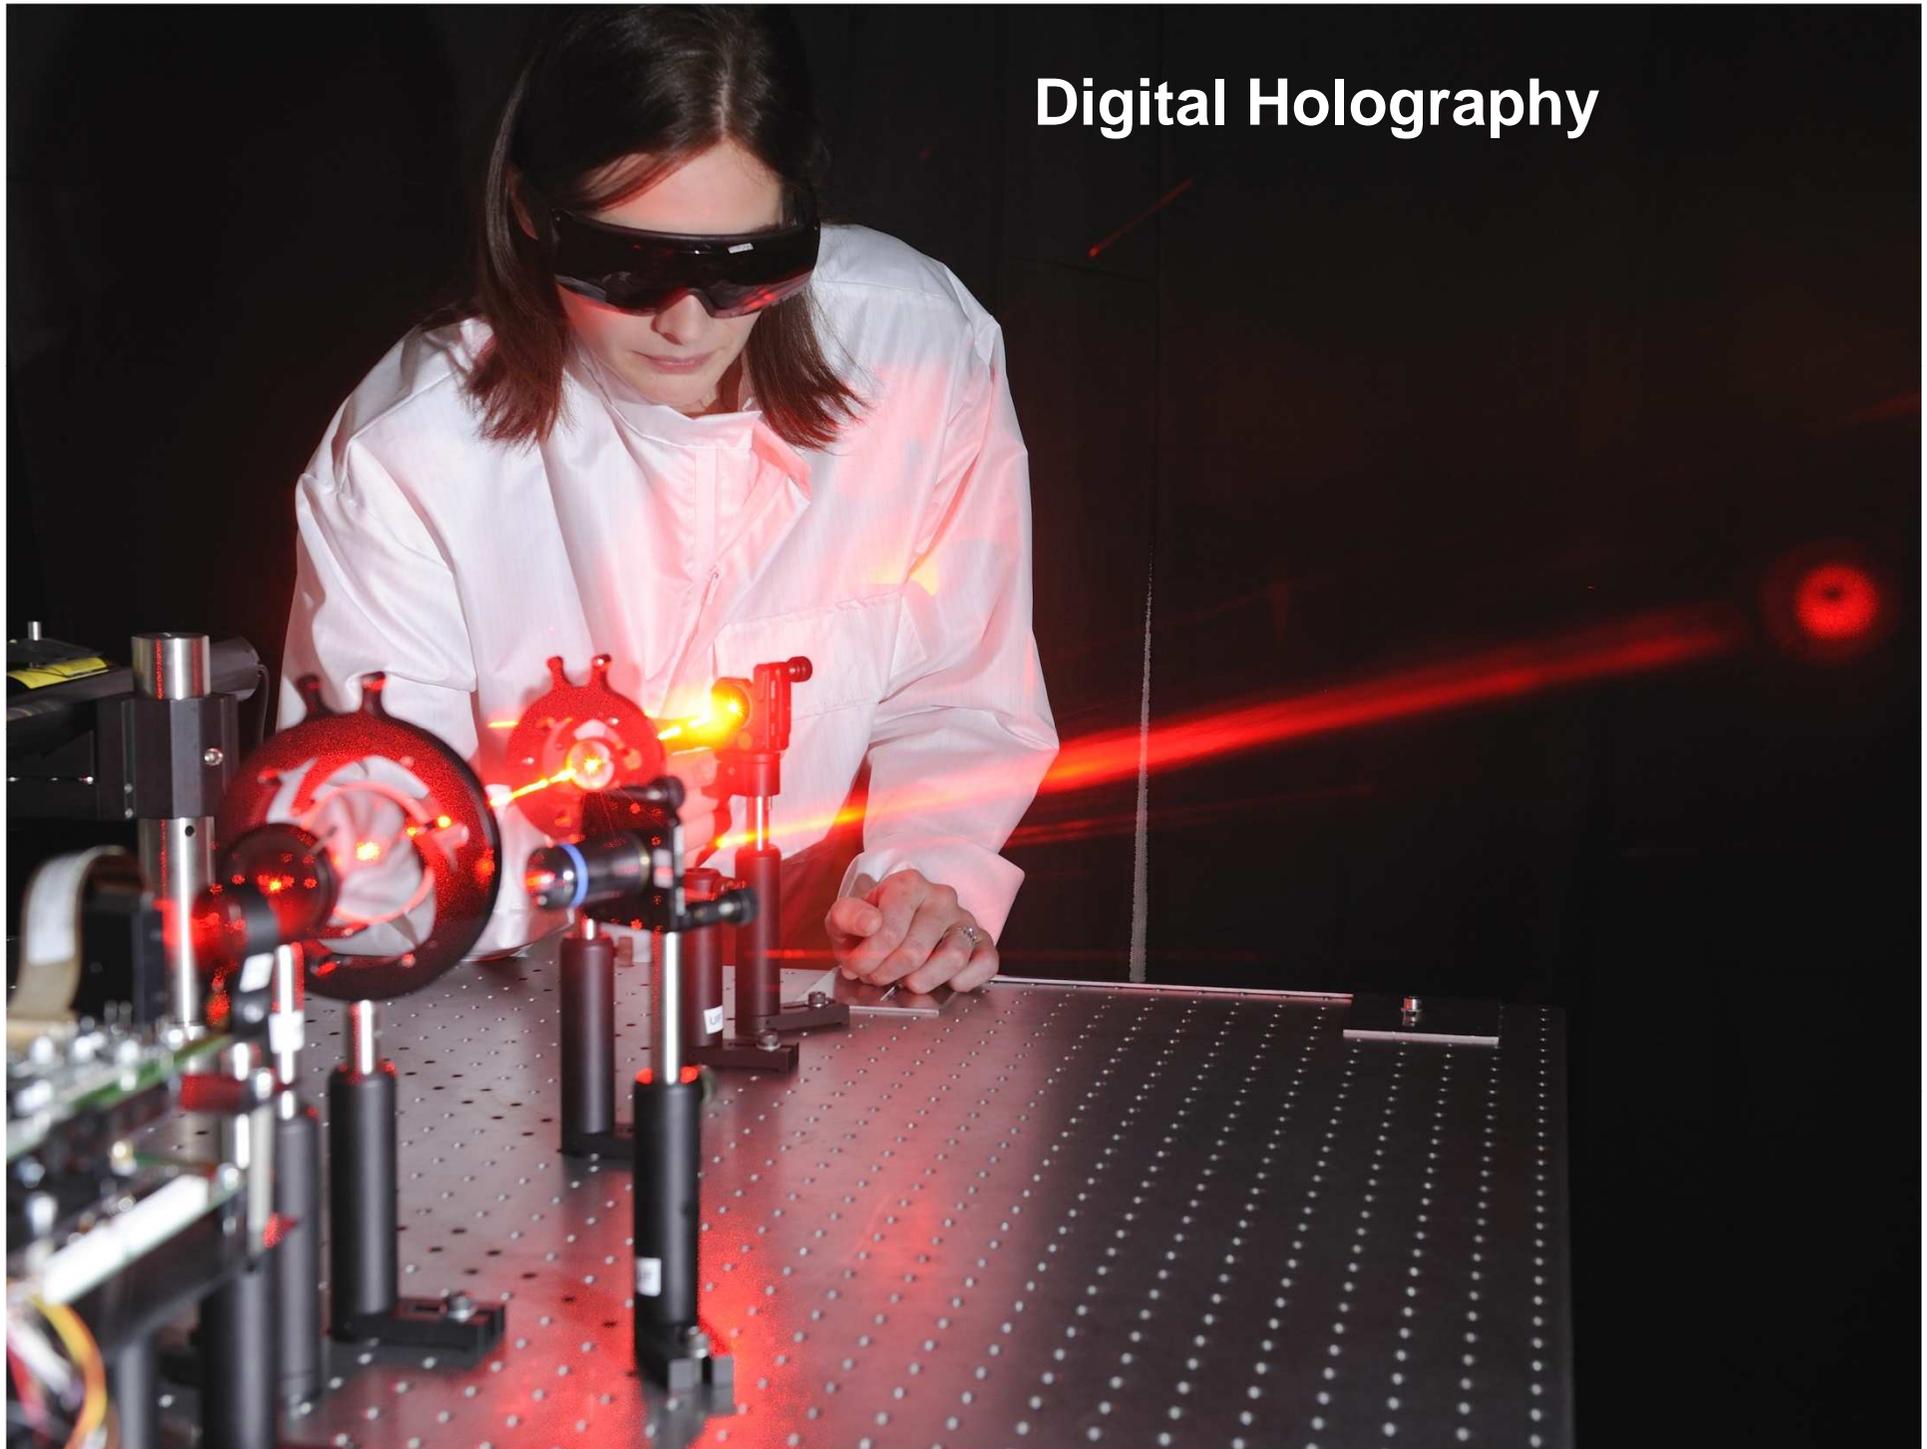

We use Liquid Crystal Displays as our devices to display these holograms: Spatial Light Modulators

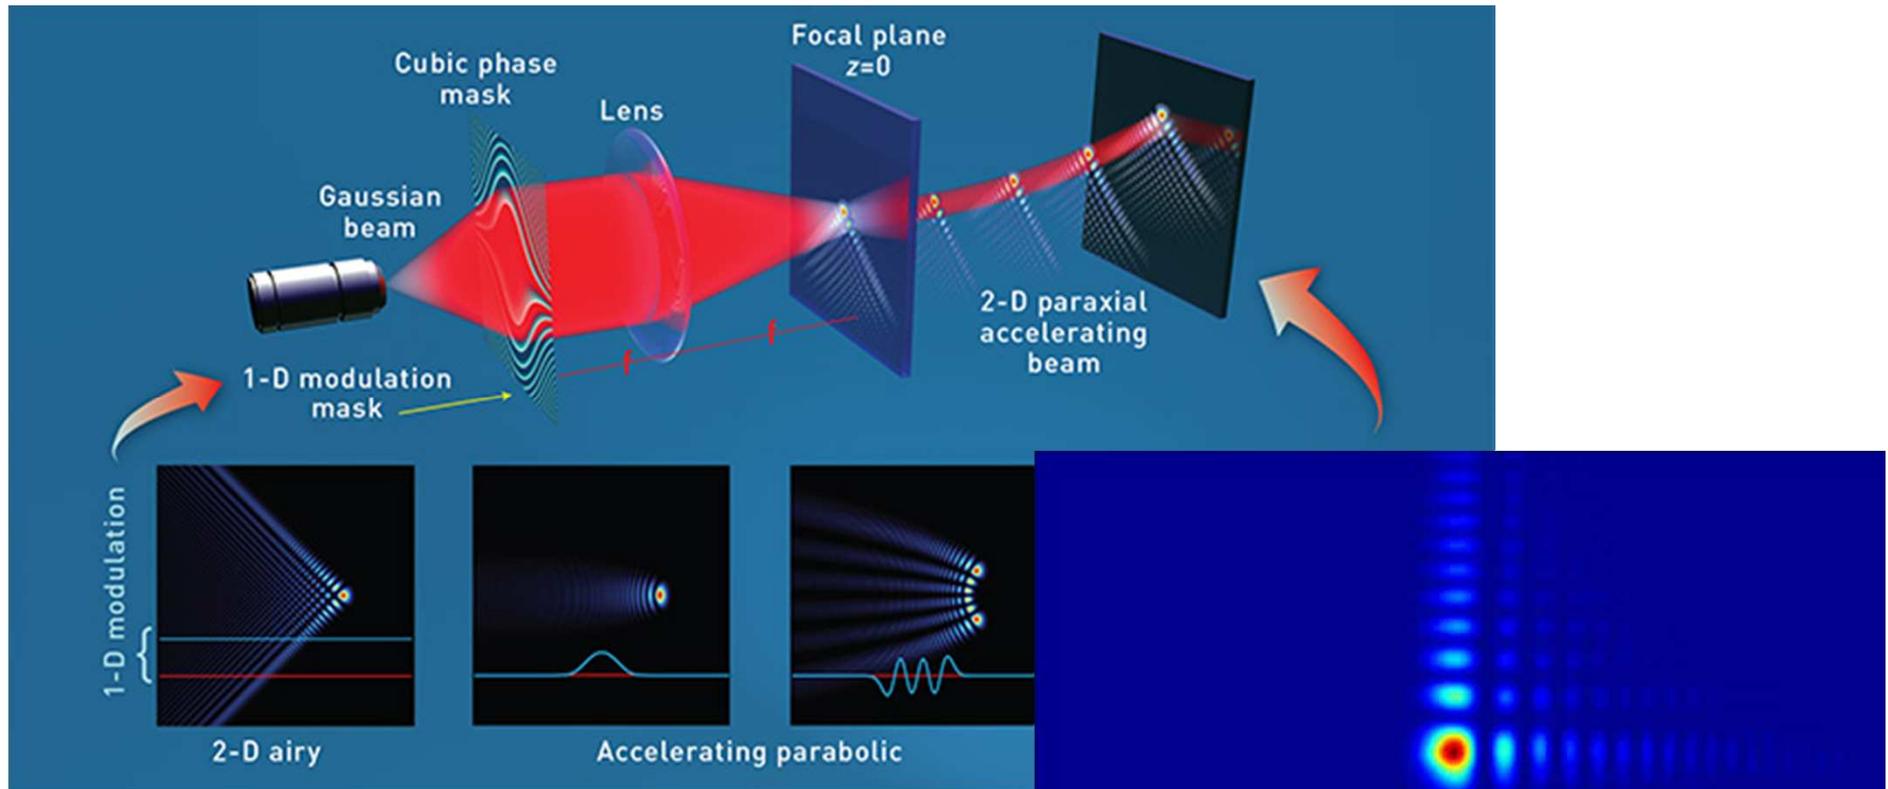

Digital Holography

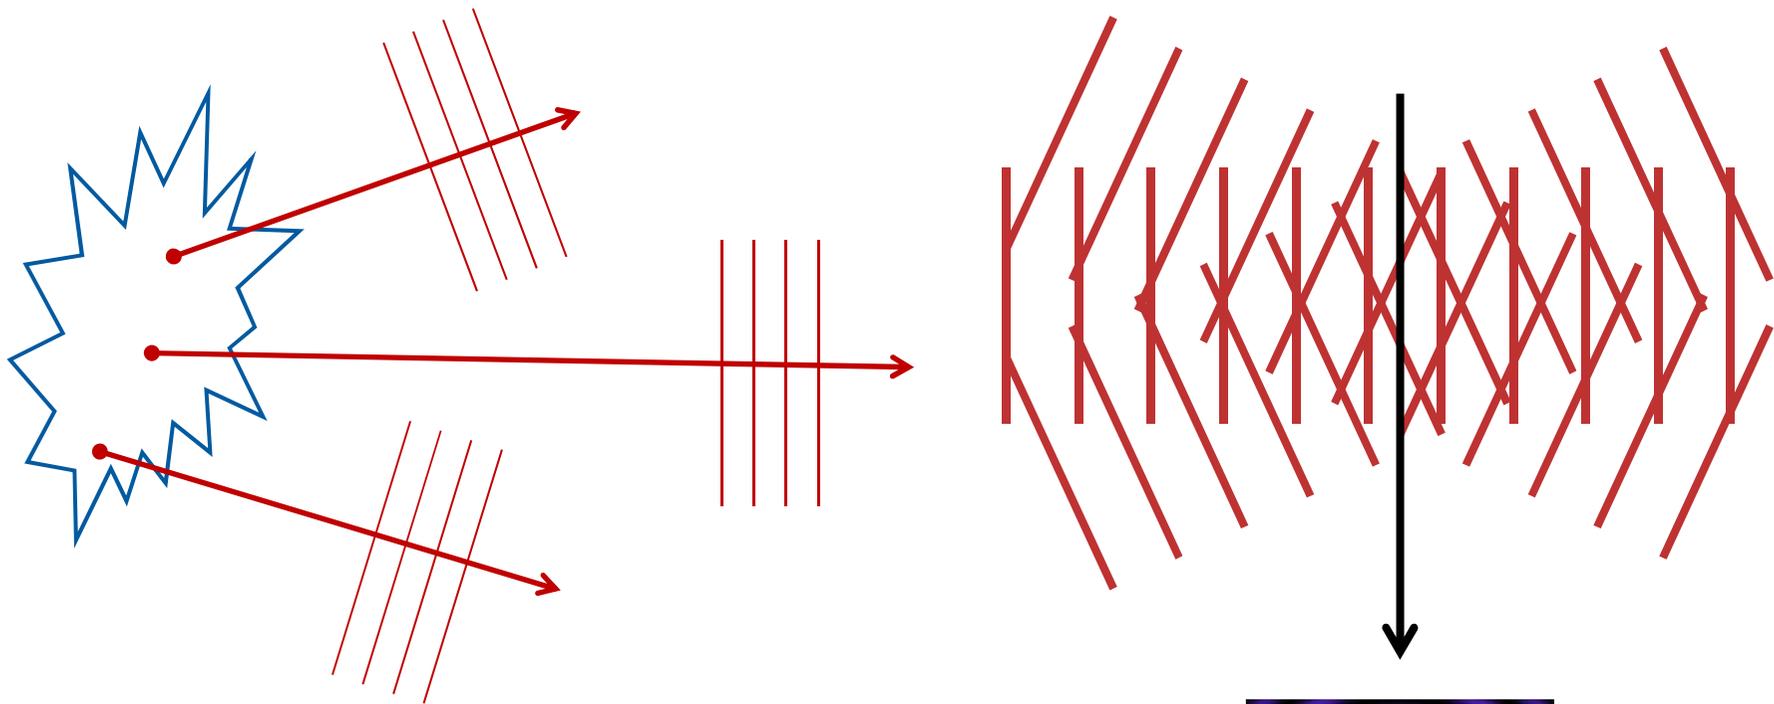

What we want to do is “break the rules” of optics, which can be done if we consider specific features of optical fields

Phys. Rev. Lett. 99, 213901 (2007)

We will create non-diffracting and angular accelerating beams

$$U(x, y) = \iint A(u, v) \exp(i2\pi(ux + vy)) dudv$$

Plane waves

Angular Spectrum of $U(x, y)$

Consider illuminating an axicon with a Gaussian beam

We can place our hologram in the “spatial-frequency” plane to replicate the angular spectrum

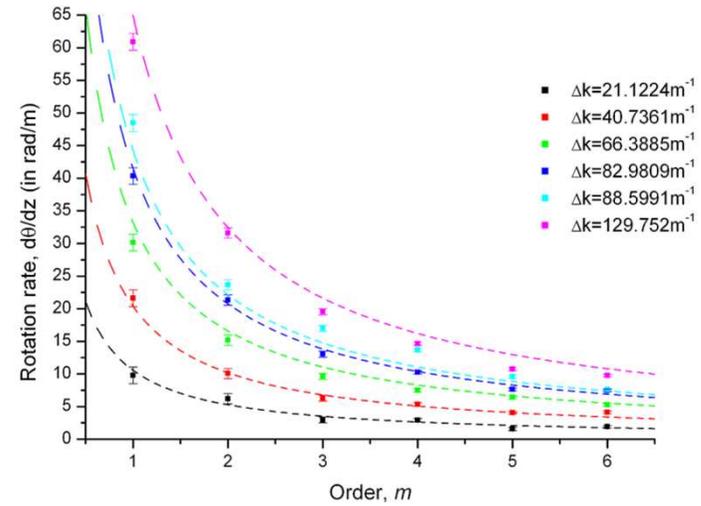

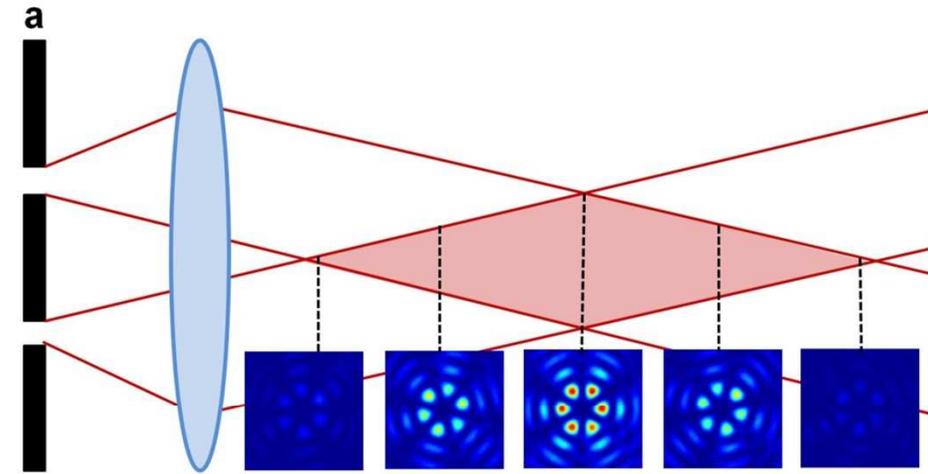

By creating beams with differing phase velocities, the interference pattern changes with propagation distance

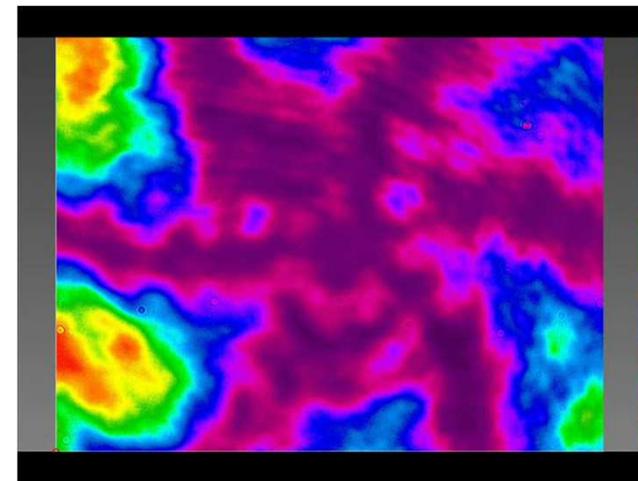

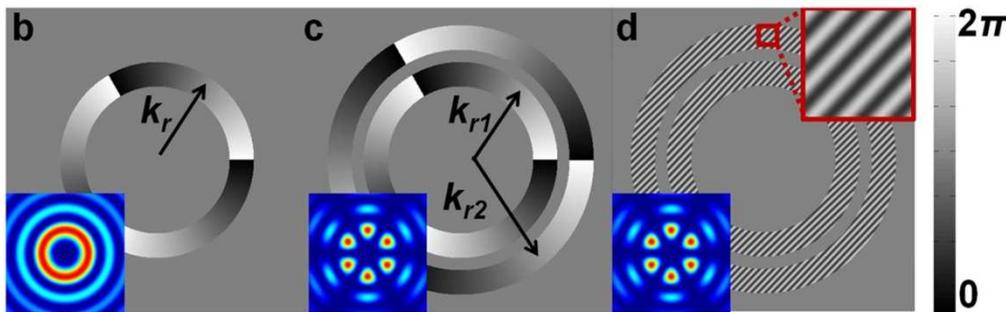

$$H \equiv B_1 e^{ik_{1z}z} e^{-im\varphi} + B_2 e^{ik_{2z}z} e^{im\varphi}$$

$$I \propto B[1 + \cos(\Delta kz - 2m\varphi)]$$

We can make the pattern rotate during propagation

Now let's create a non-linear variation in the azimuthal phase
 ... for angular acceleration with twisted light

We can demonstrate the angular acceleration of light

Can we use the SLM as a digital tool for the analysis of optical fields and single photons?

The idea is to expand the unknown field into an orthonormal basis and find the unknown coefficients

$$U = \sum_{n=0}^{\infty} c_n \Psi_n$$

? = c_1 + c_2 + c_3

$$c_n = \rho_n \exp(i\phi_n) = \langle U, \Psi_n \rangle = \iint U \Psi_n^* dx dy$$

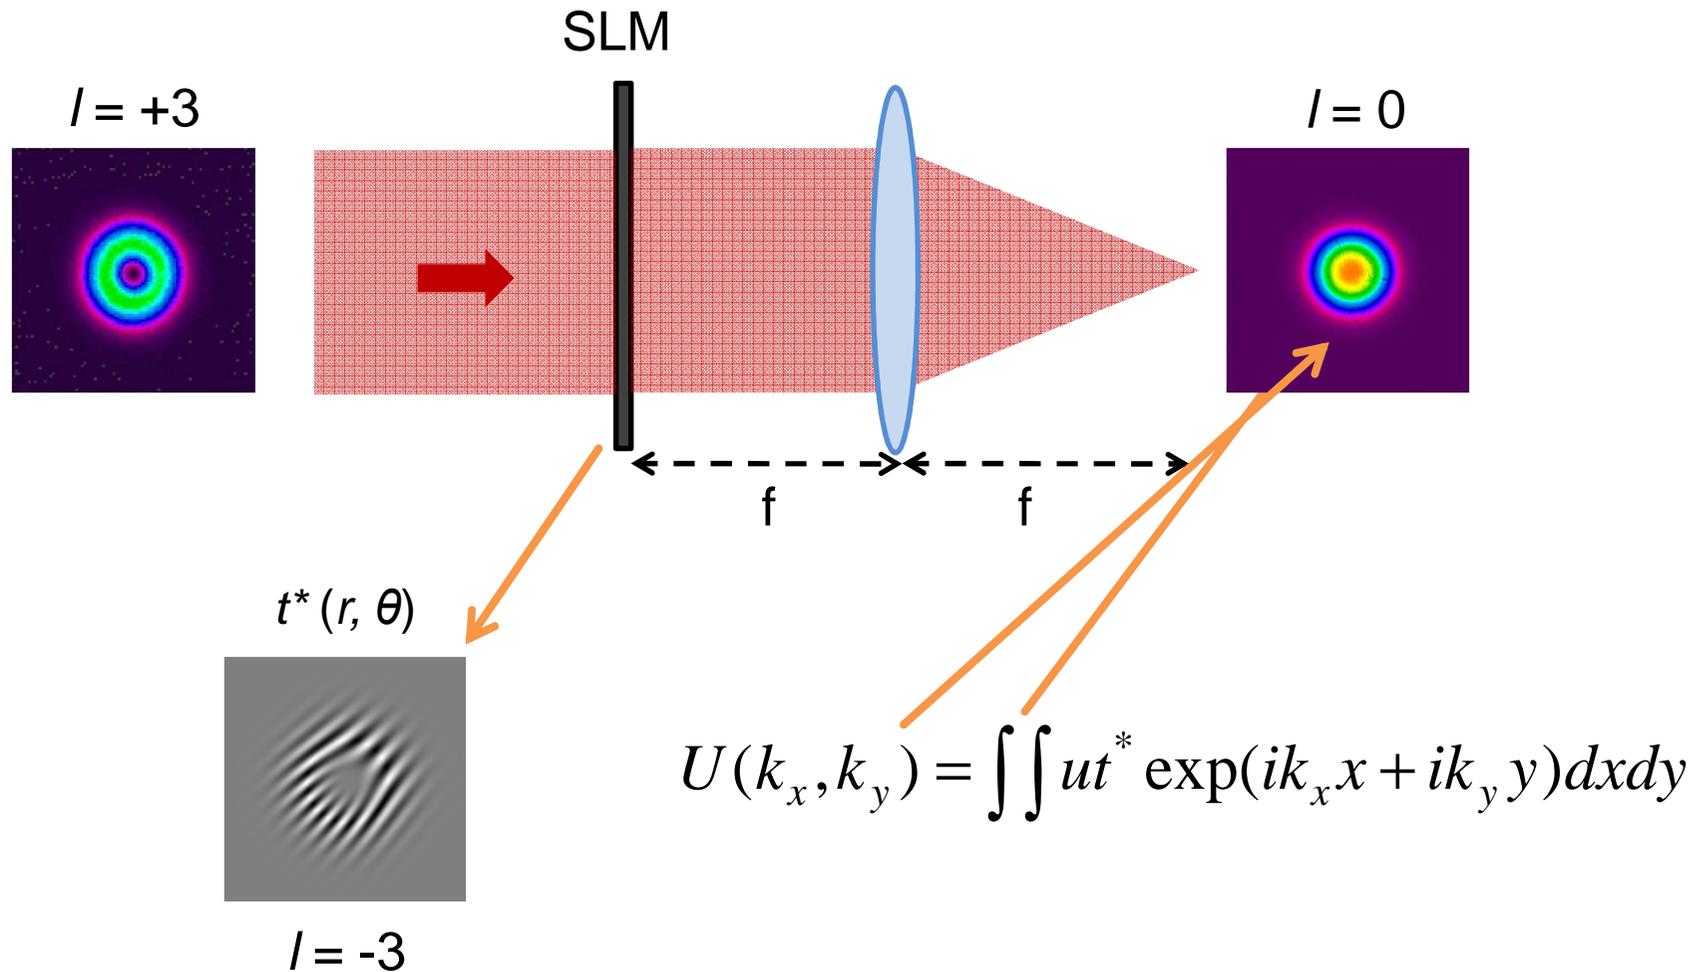

Perform this integral

Create these modes

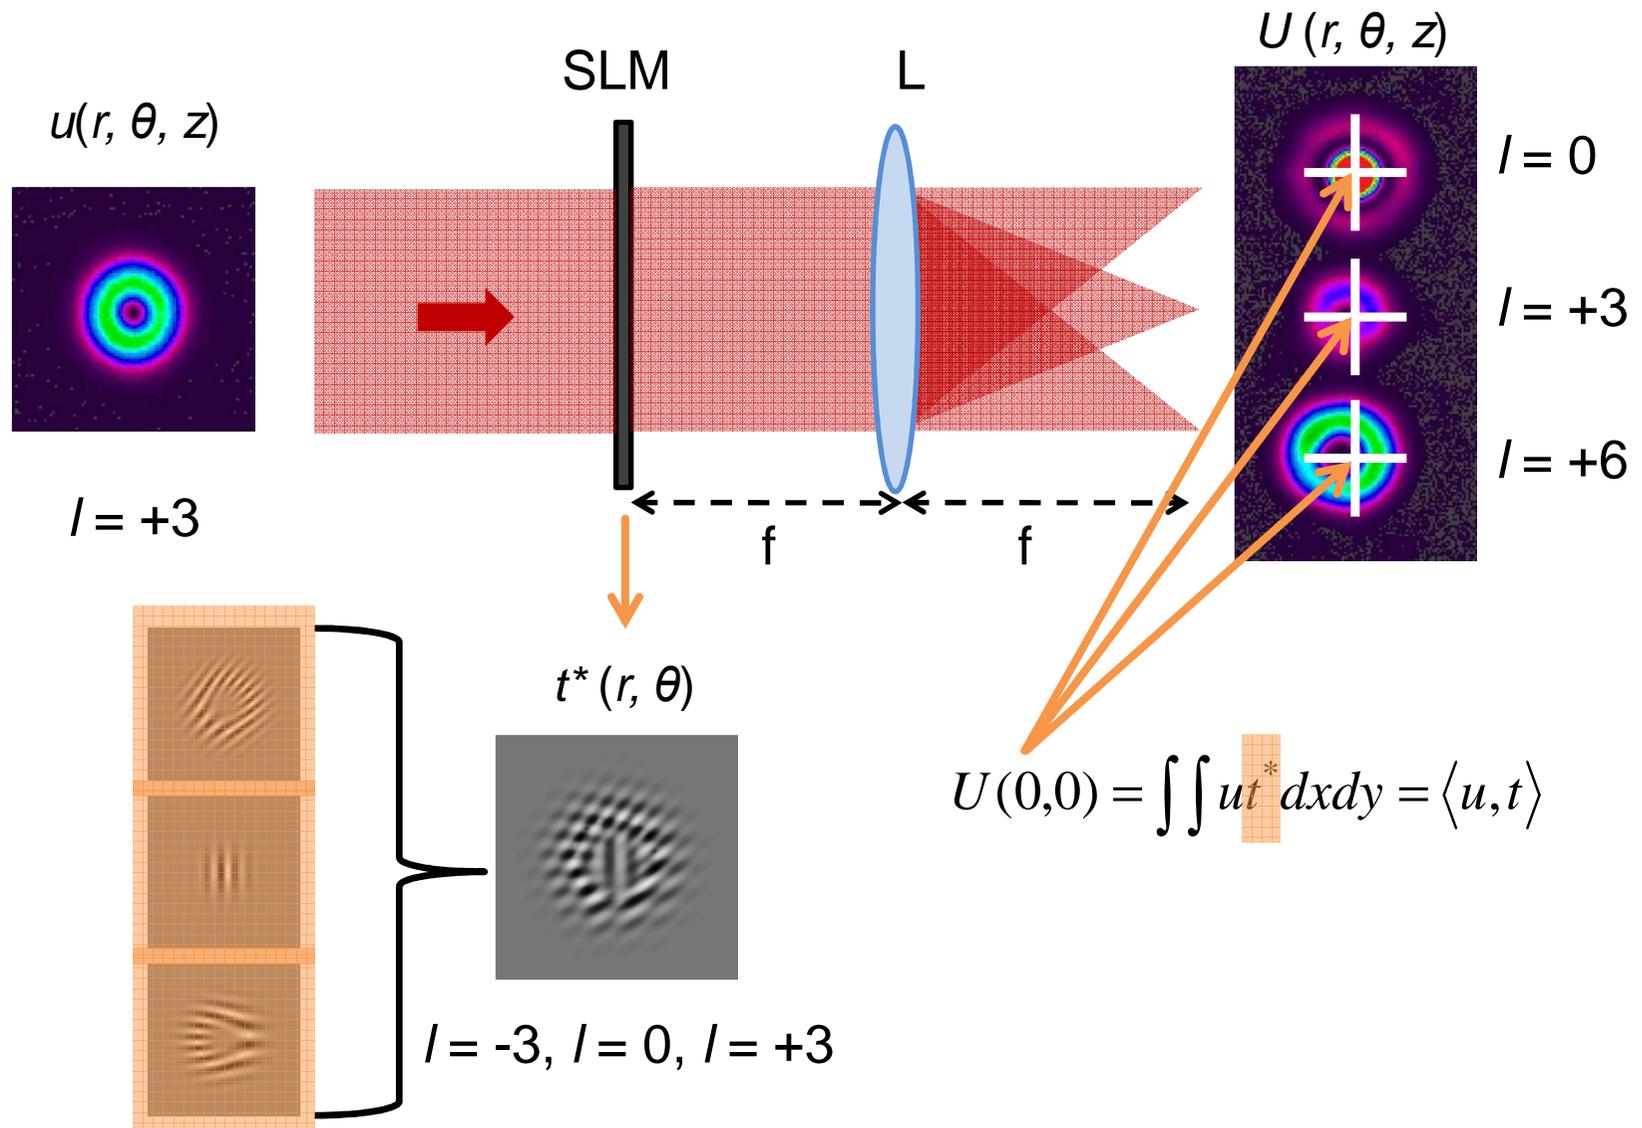

We know how to create any laser beam with digital holograms written to SLMs

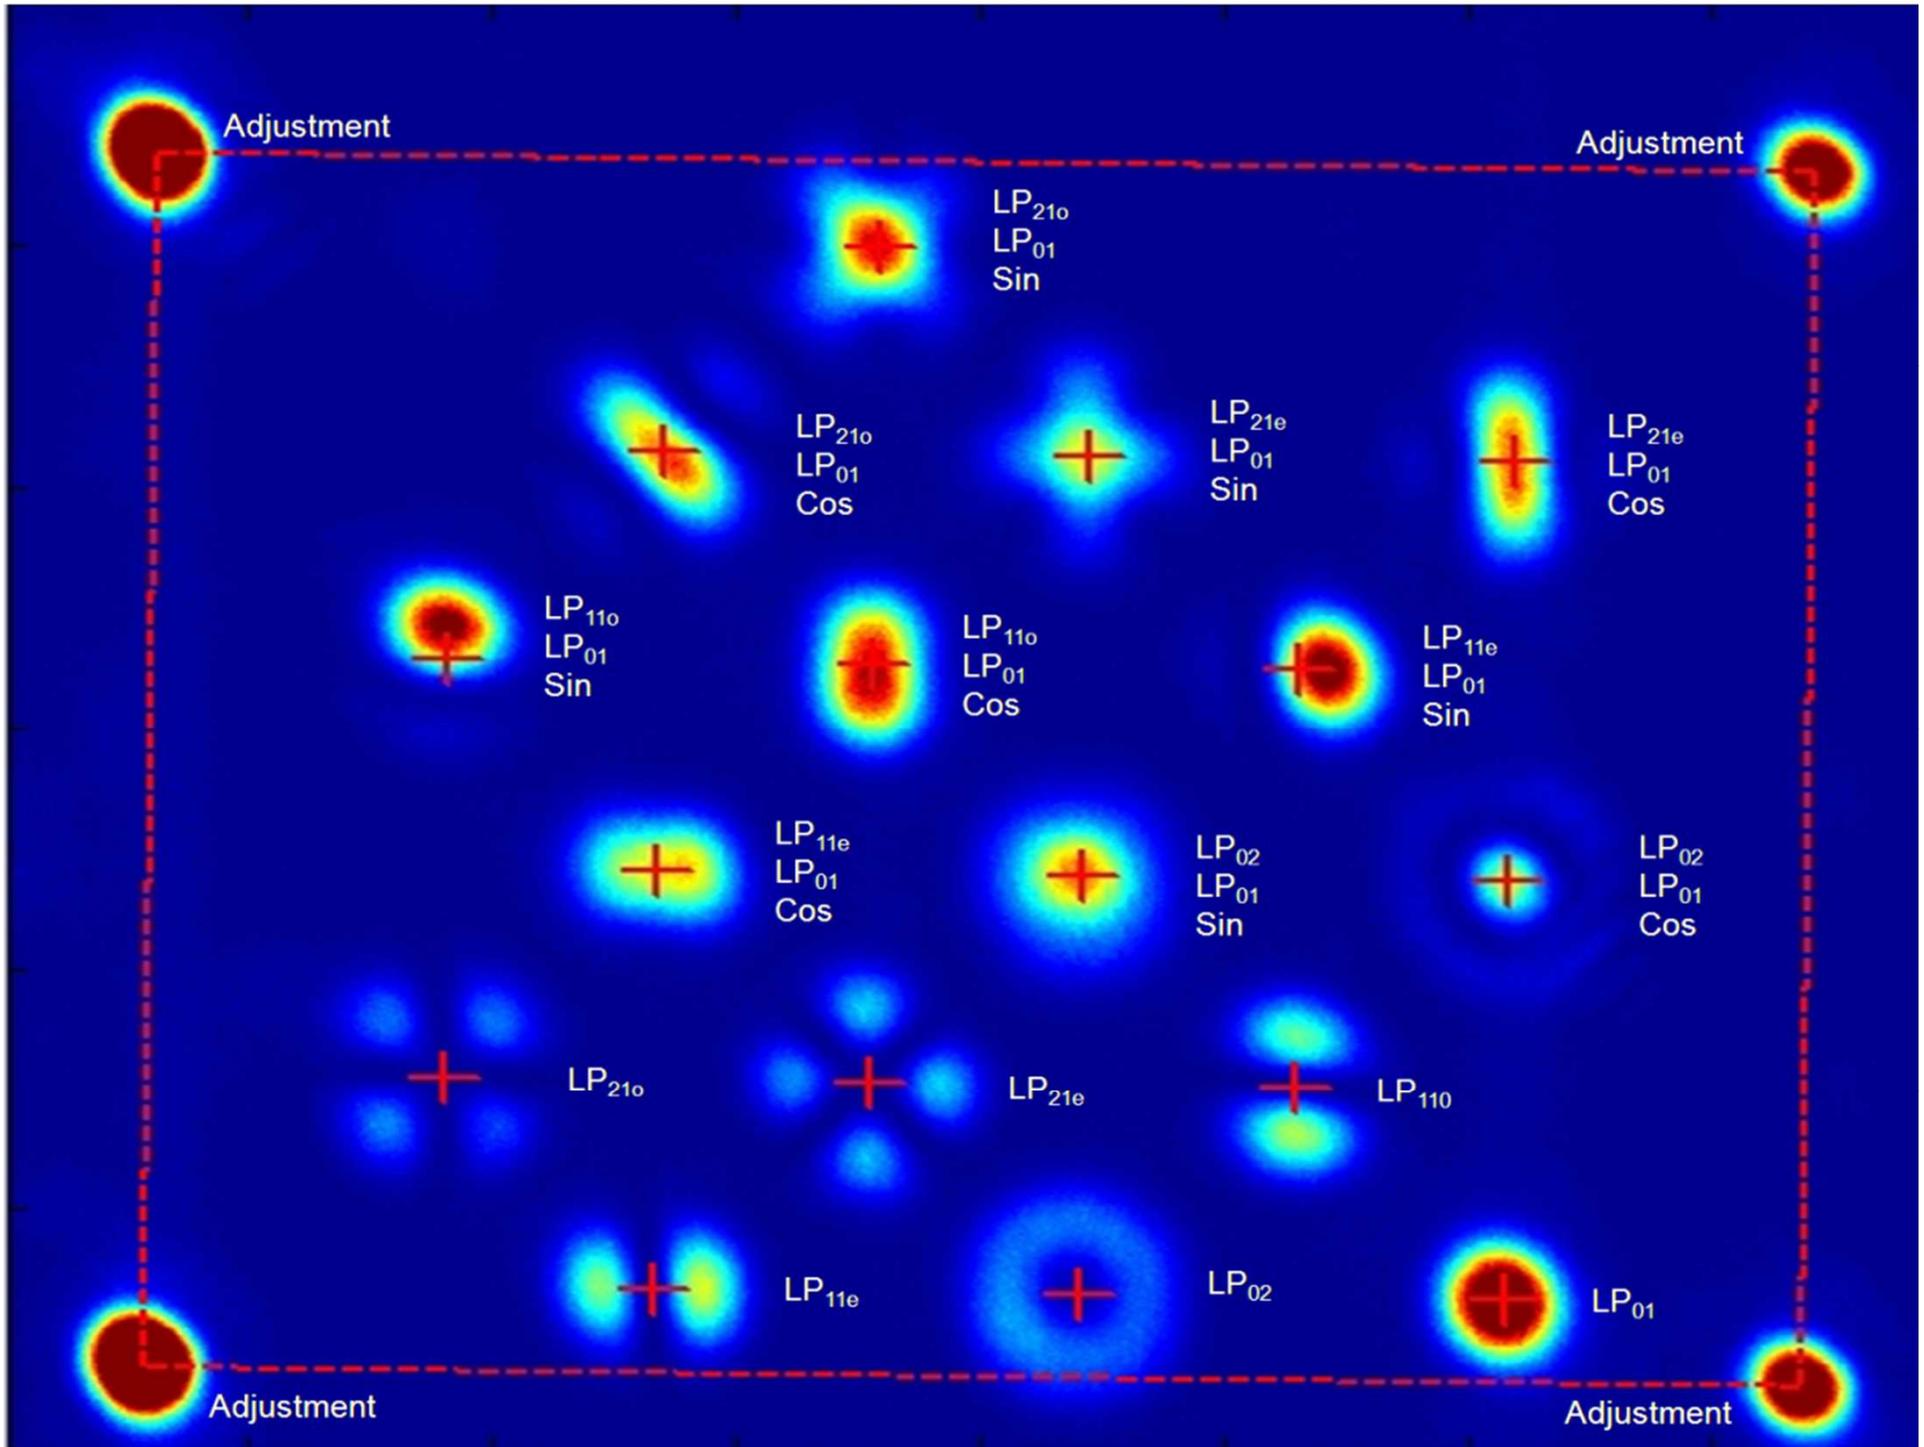

In reverse: we can pass an unknown field through a match filter to find the inner product

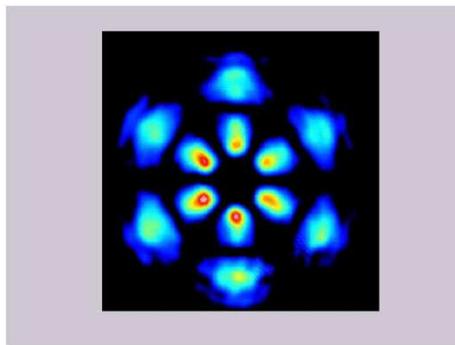

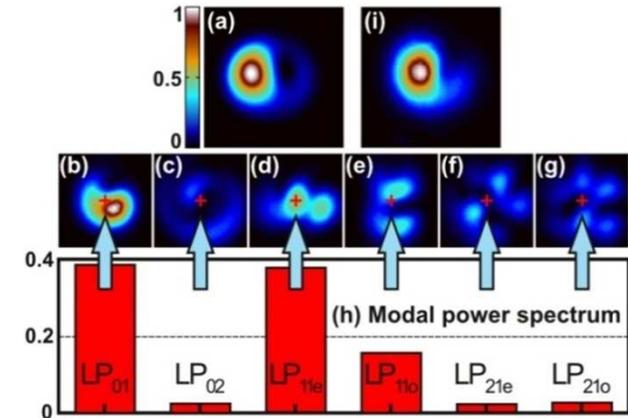

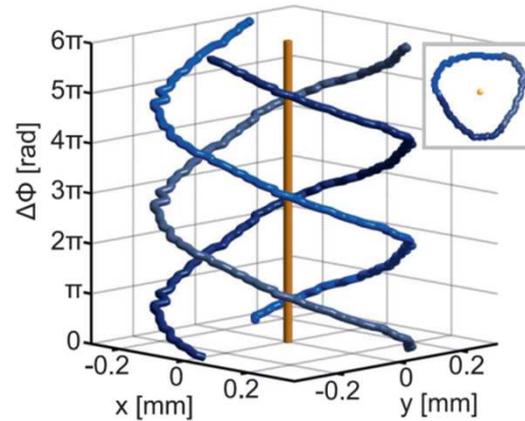

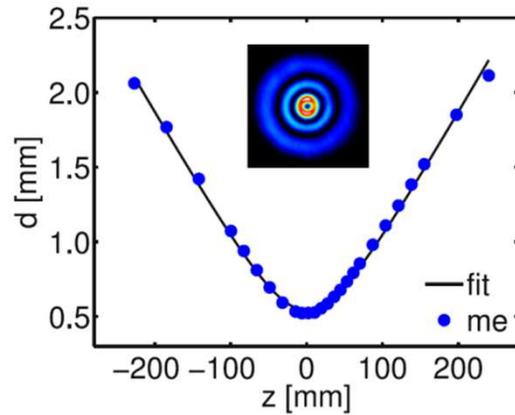

Multiplexing allows many measurements at once

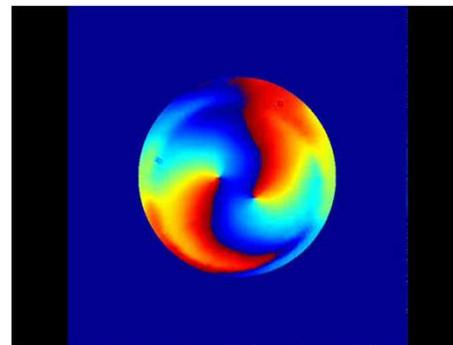

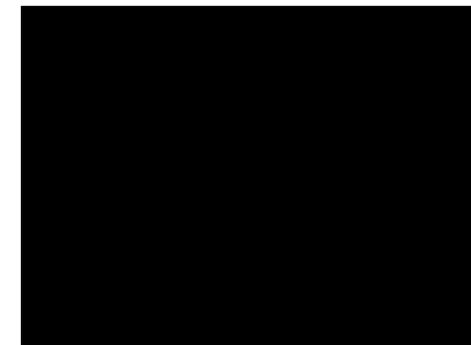

Any physical property of the field can be measured; here are some examples

Entangled Bessel photons using both OAM and radial degrees of freedom

We can tune to higher dimensions and engineered states by using Bessel patterns of light

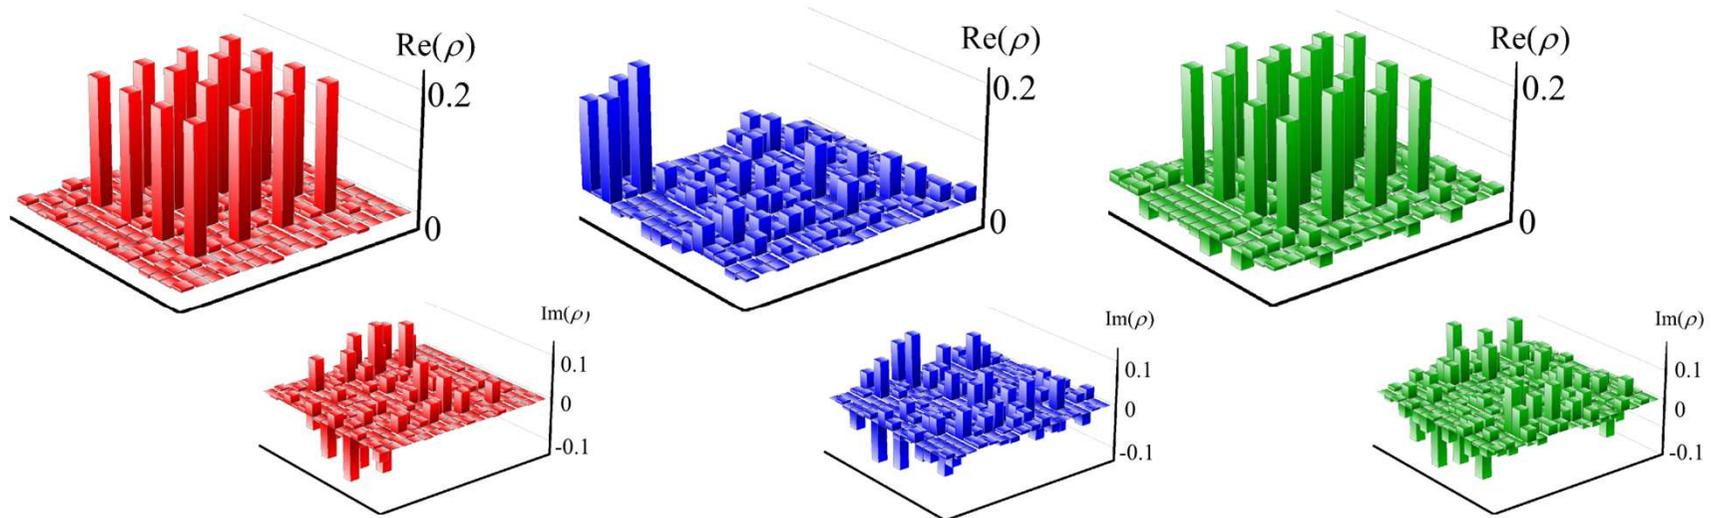

It is well known that these beams self-heal after an obstruction
 ... and also in the quantum world?

Nature Communications 5, 3248 (2014)

The self-healing property is applicable to high-dimensional entanglement with Bessel photons

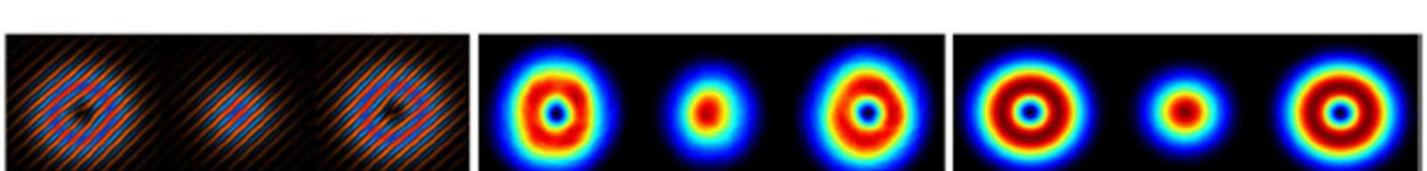

$$d = 4: \quad \ell = |-2, -1, 1, 2\rangle$$

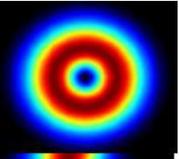

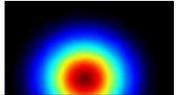

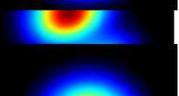

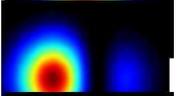

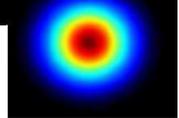

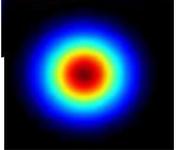

Fidelity as a function of the position of the obstacle

Dimension	5 mm	15 mm	30 mm	50 mm	Unobstructed
2	0.24	0.59	0.79	0.96	0.97
4	0.20	0.45	0.68	0.75	0.79

Can we customise spatial modes to form Mutually Unbiased Bases (MUBs) from our orthonormal set?

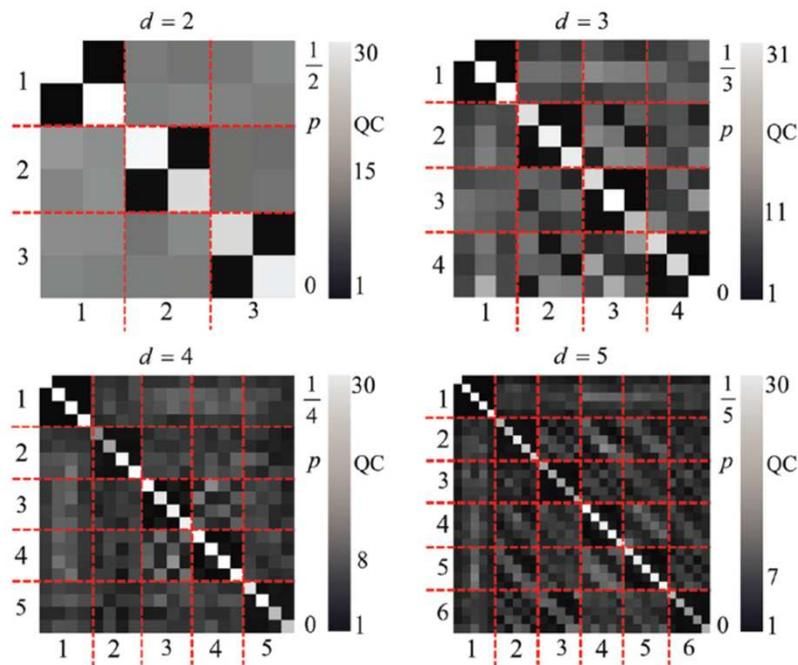

(d + 1) MUBs

	•		= 0
	•		= 1/3
	•		= 1

Maybe

We can then execute QKD using high dimensional quantum states

Phys. Rev. A 88, 032305 (2013)

Both the entanglement and the OAM spectrum change during propagation

When turbulence is introduced the modal coupling leads to loss of information

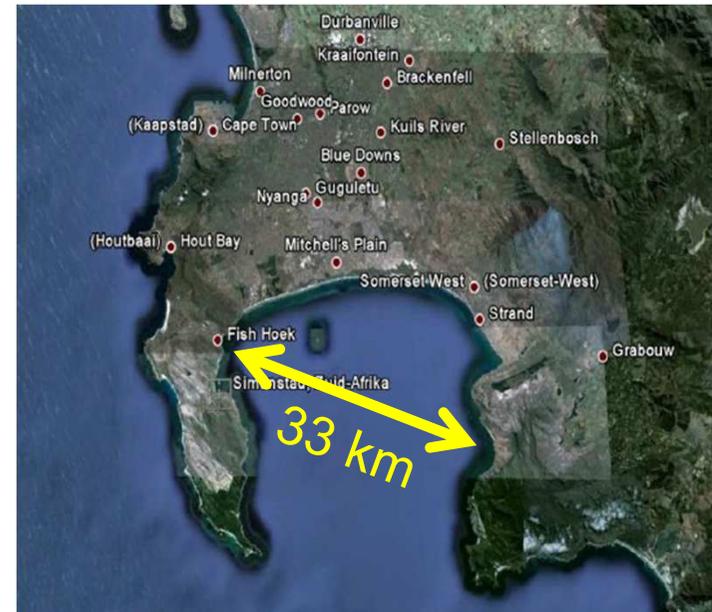

I'm looking for a student to do a crazy experiment ...

Can we put the SLM inside the laser to create a holographic mirror that is digitally controlled?

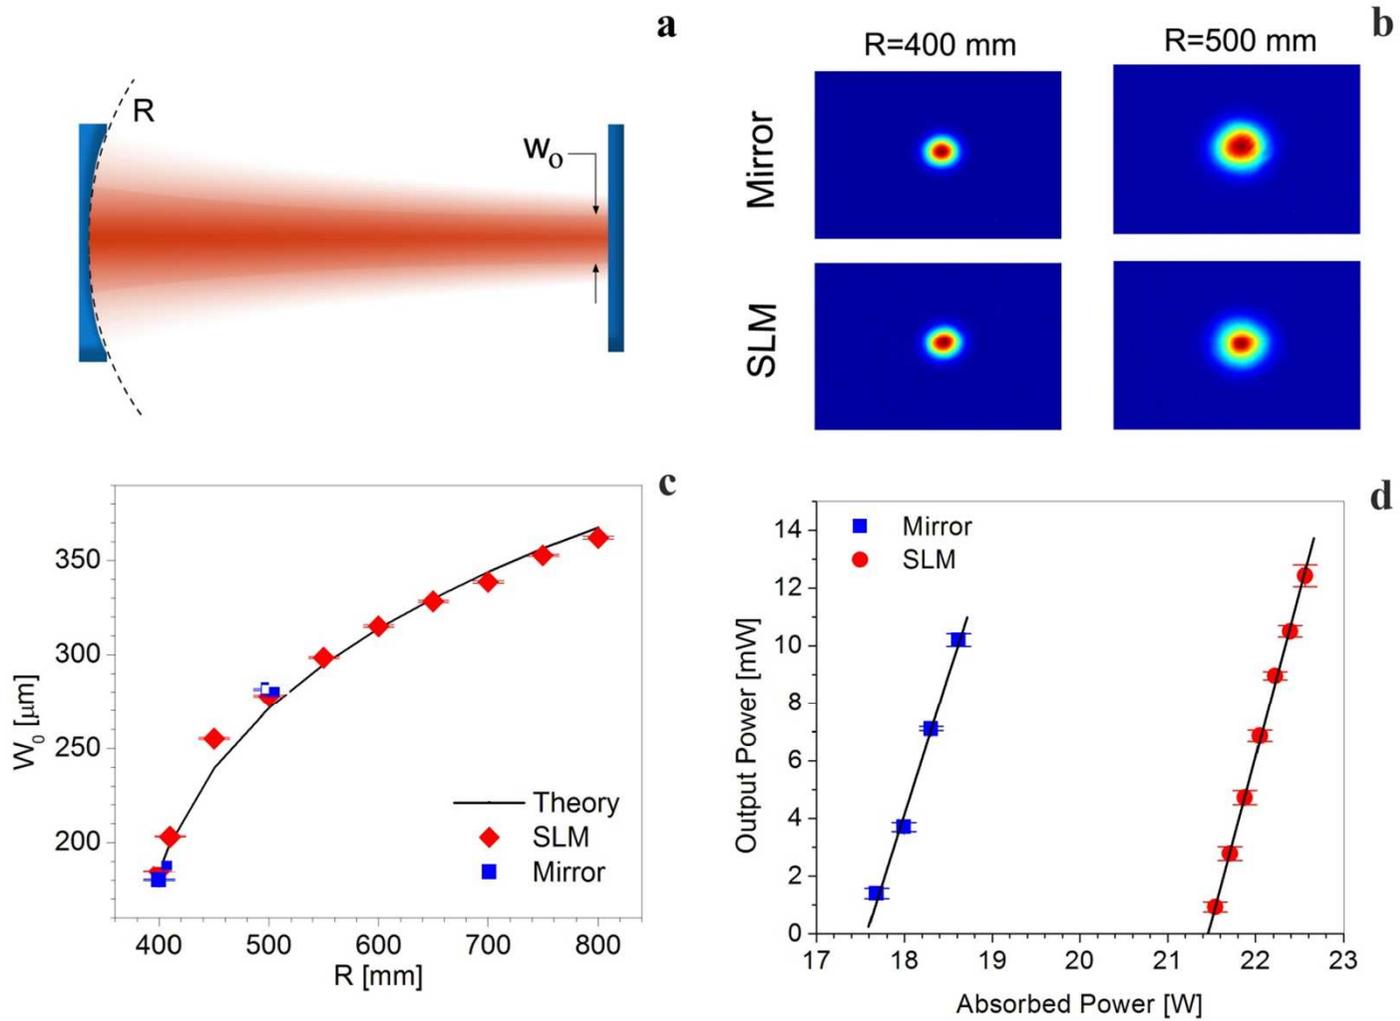

Conventional lasers have fixed, prefabricated mirrors or optics

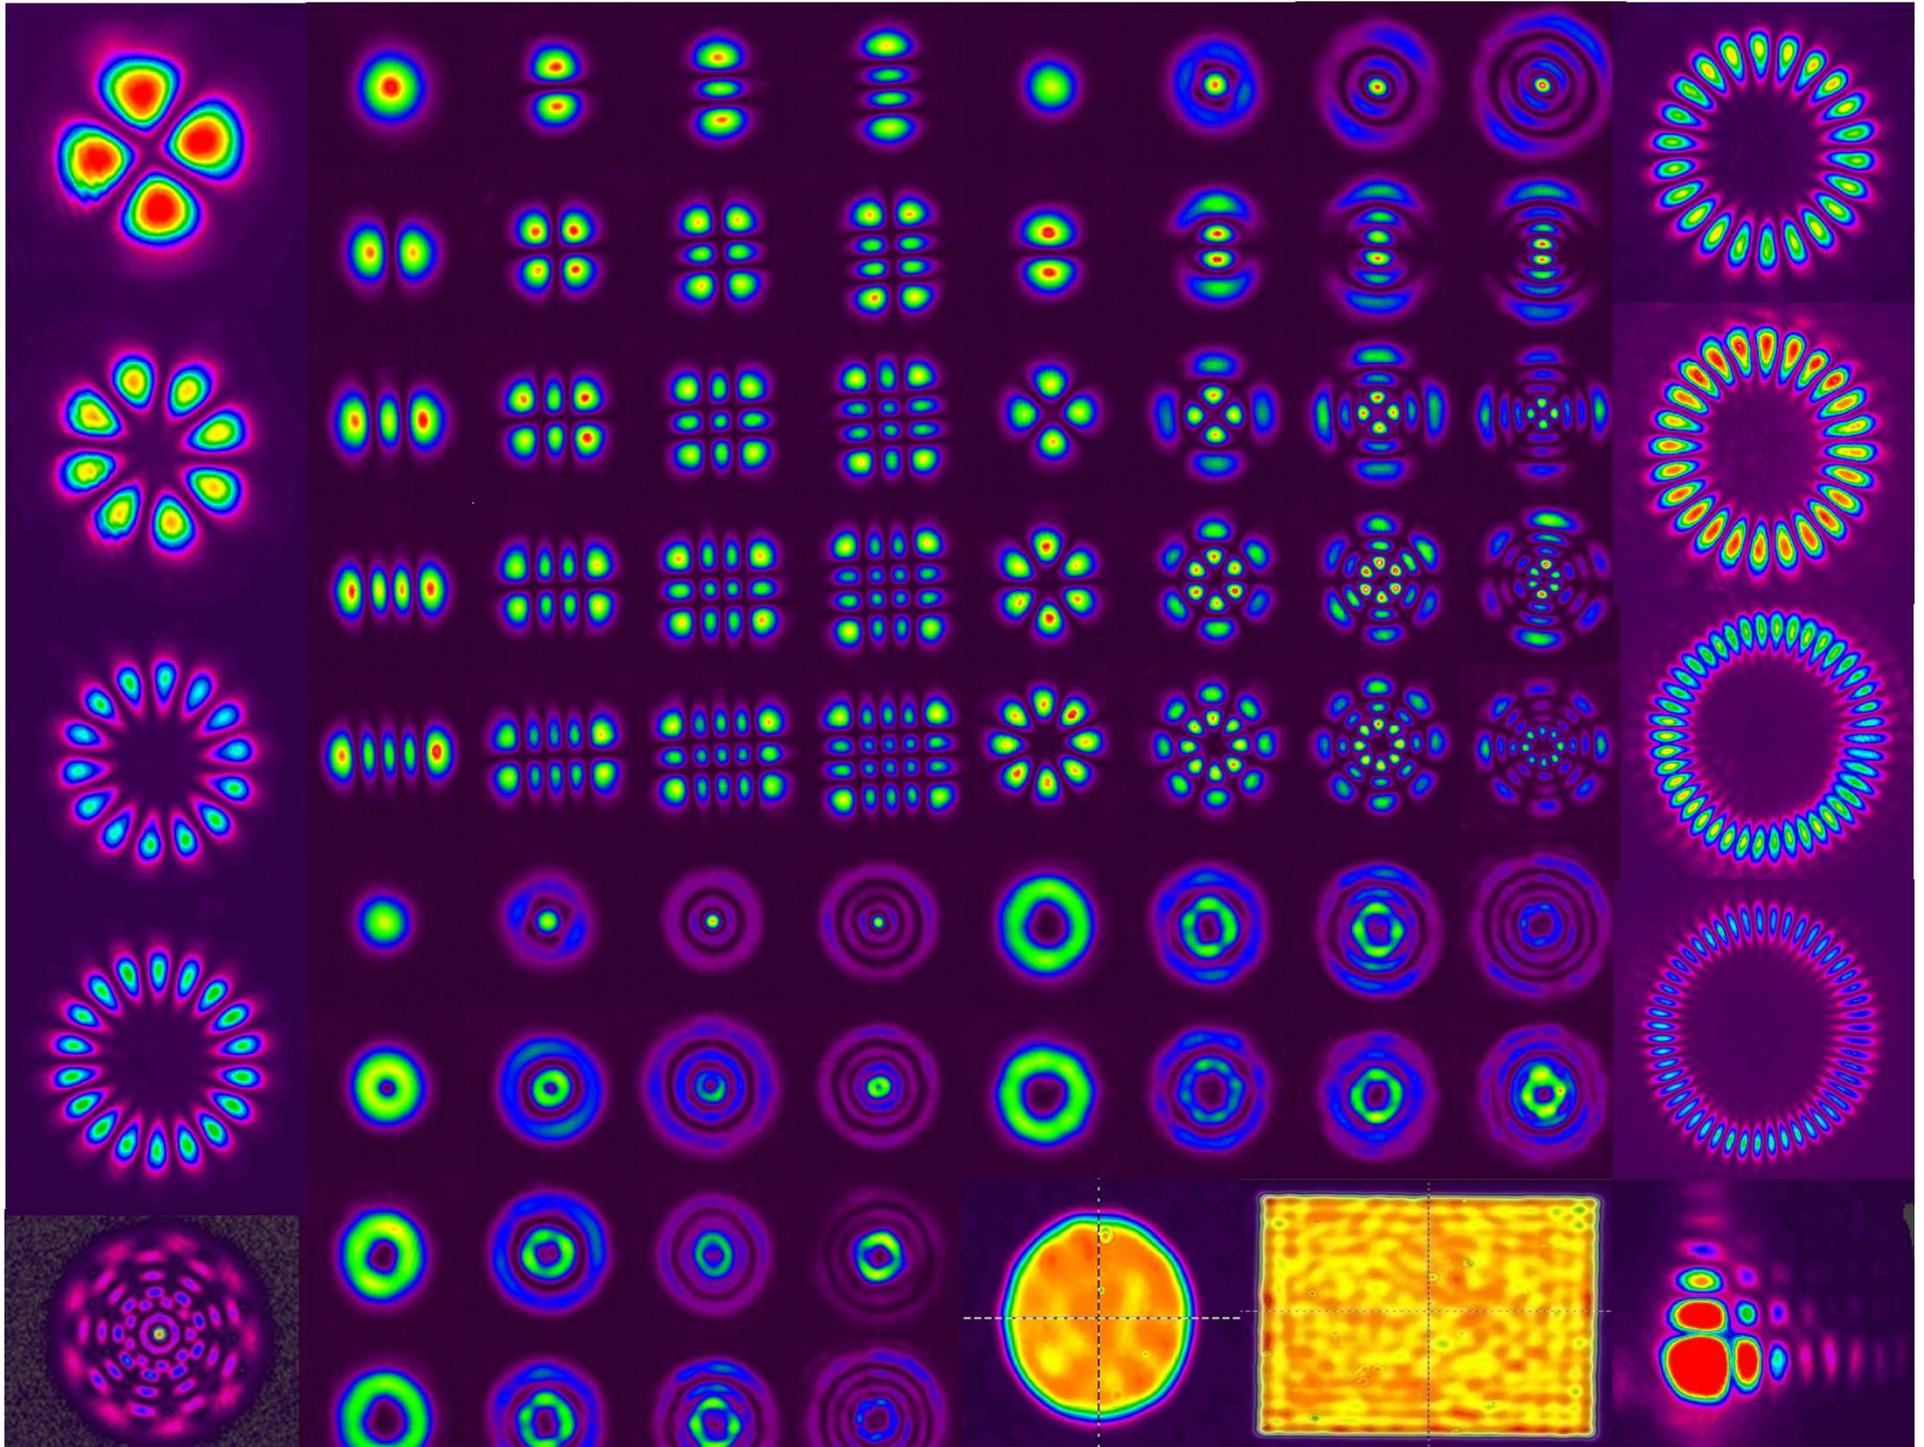

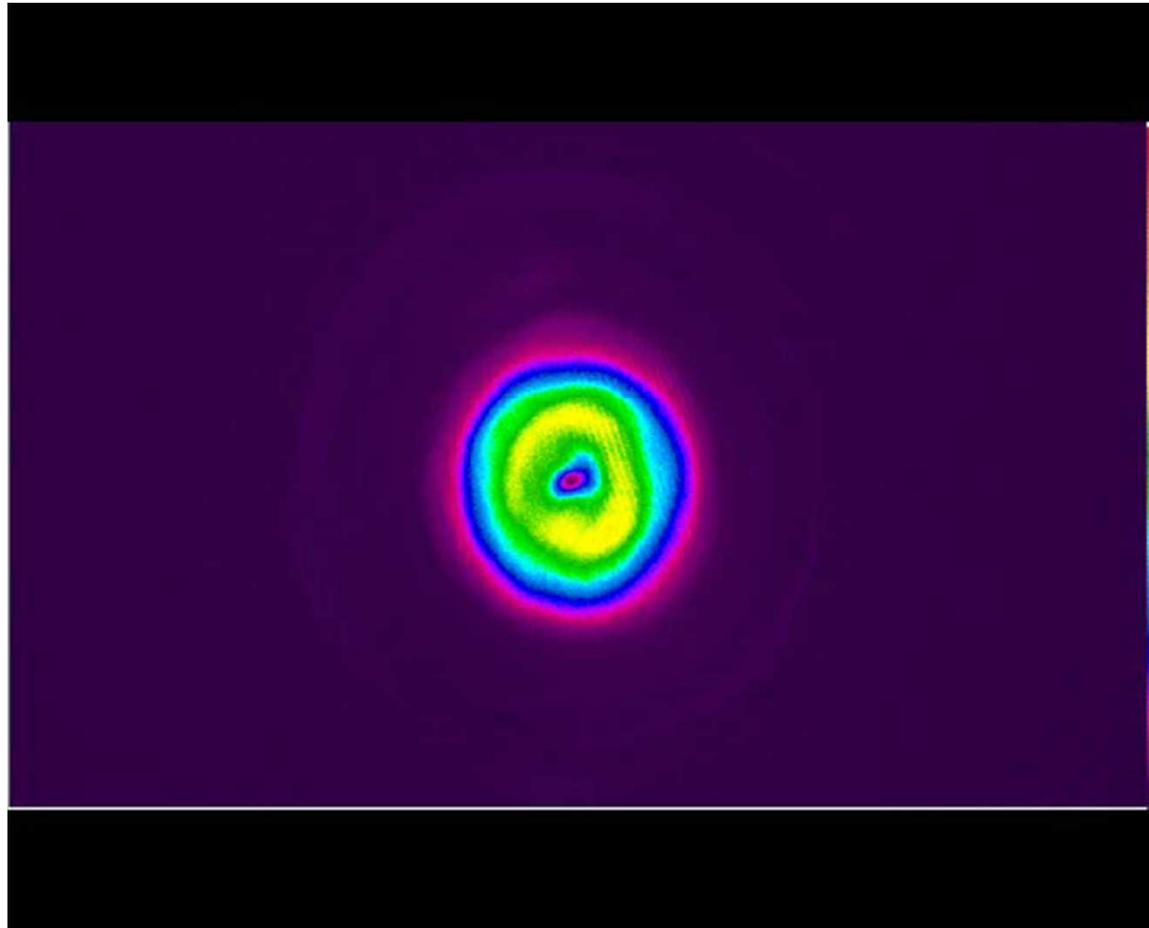

The digital laser concept: very simple

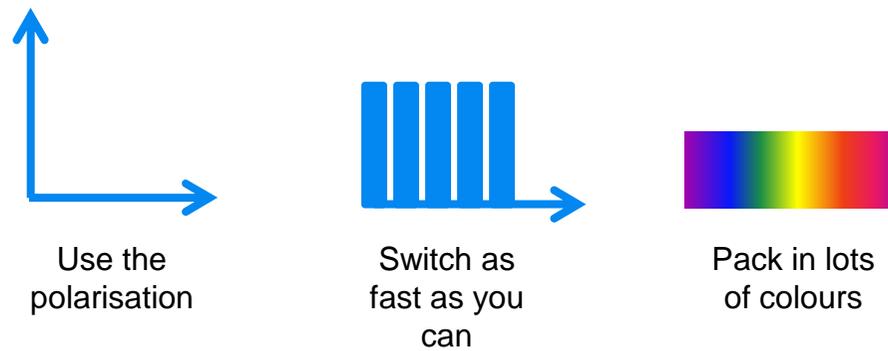

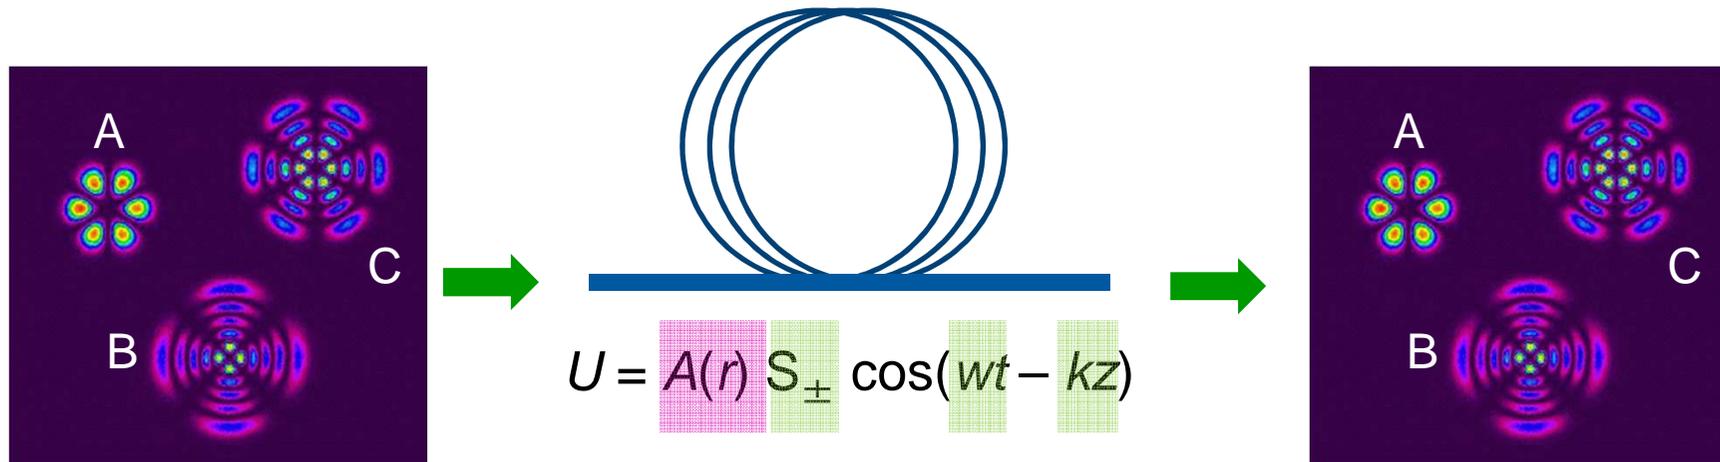

But there is a cost ... the efficiency of the laser

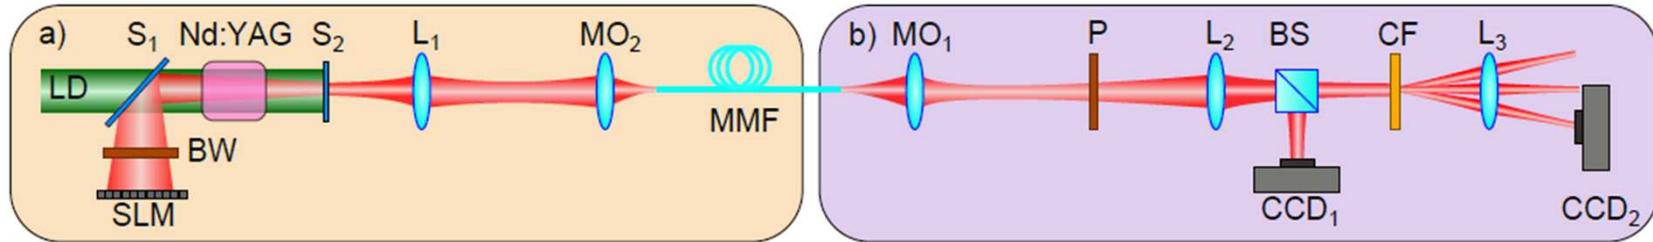

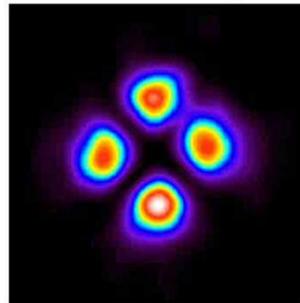

Application: Could we encode information into the patterns of light for increased bandwidth?

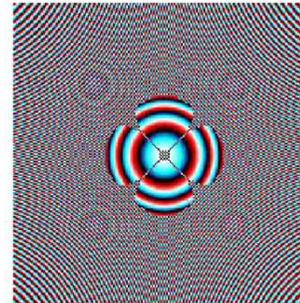

Encoding information into spatial modes and transferring them directly from the source
