

Contribution ID: 93

Type: Poster

Non-commutative Quantum Field Theory

Non-commutative field theory is applied to nucleon-nucleon interactions where we assume the spatial coordinates of nucleons do not commute. This assumption leads to the interpretation that nucleons occupy a minimum volume in space which alters our view of NN-interactions. Qualitative descriptions of these interactions are obtained using various approximations.

Primary author: Mr GROENEWALD, Hendrikus (University of Stellenbosch)

Co-authors: Prof. SCHOLTZ, F.G. (National Institute for Theoretical Physics); Dr WYNGAARDT, S.M. (University of Stellenbosch)

Presenter: Mr GROENEWALD, Hendrikus (University of Stellenbosch)

Track Classification: Track G - Theoretical and Computational Physics